WHALE WATCH

Sailing Catamaran in Exclusive use

With short-finned Pilot Whales being predominantly a transient or migratory species, we are extremely fortunate that they have chosen to make this small area of ocean their permanent home. The main reasons for this are the tranquil waters and abundance of food, their main diet being giant squid, a profusion of which can be found in the Tenerife-La Gomera channel.

Of the seventy-nine species of cetacean known to science, nineteen have been seen in the waters off Tenerife, where there is a permanent colony of short-finned PILOT WHALES with some 250 members.

TREKKING
at Chinyero Volcano

The Volcan de Chinyero is the site of the last recorded volcanic eruption on Tenerife. For 9 days in November 1909, this vent to the north-west of Mount Teide spewed out lava and ash which flowed down the hillside towards Santiago del Teide.

Fortunately, and somewhat abruptly, the lava flow stopped before it reached the town and left us with arguably the most picturesque landscape in Tenerife. Now a nature reserve, the landscape around the Chinyero vent is categorised by volcanic cinder cones and lava flows surrounded by brilliant green pine forests, set a gainst a backdrop of the magnificent Mount Teide.

This walk takes you on a loop around the Chinyero crater. The trail is a most dirt track and is almost entirely leve l with no significant gradients to be found, making this a superb walk.

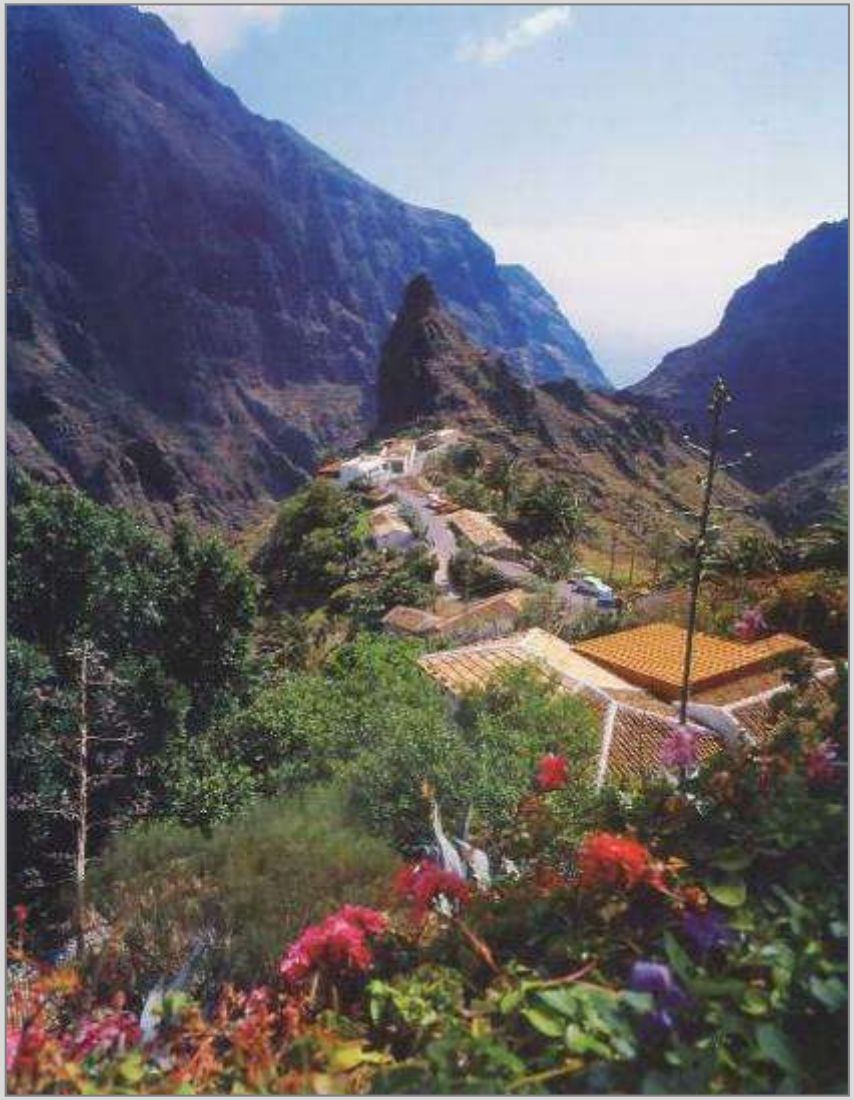
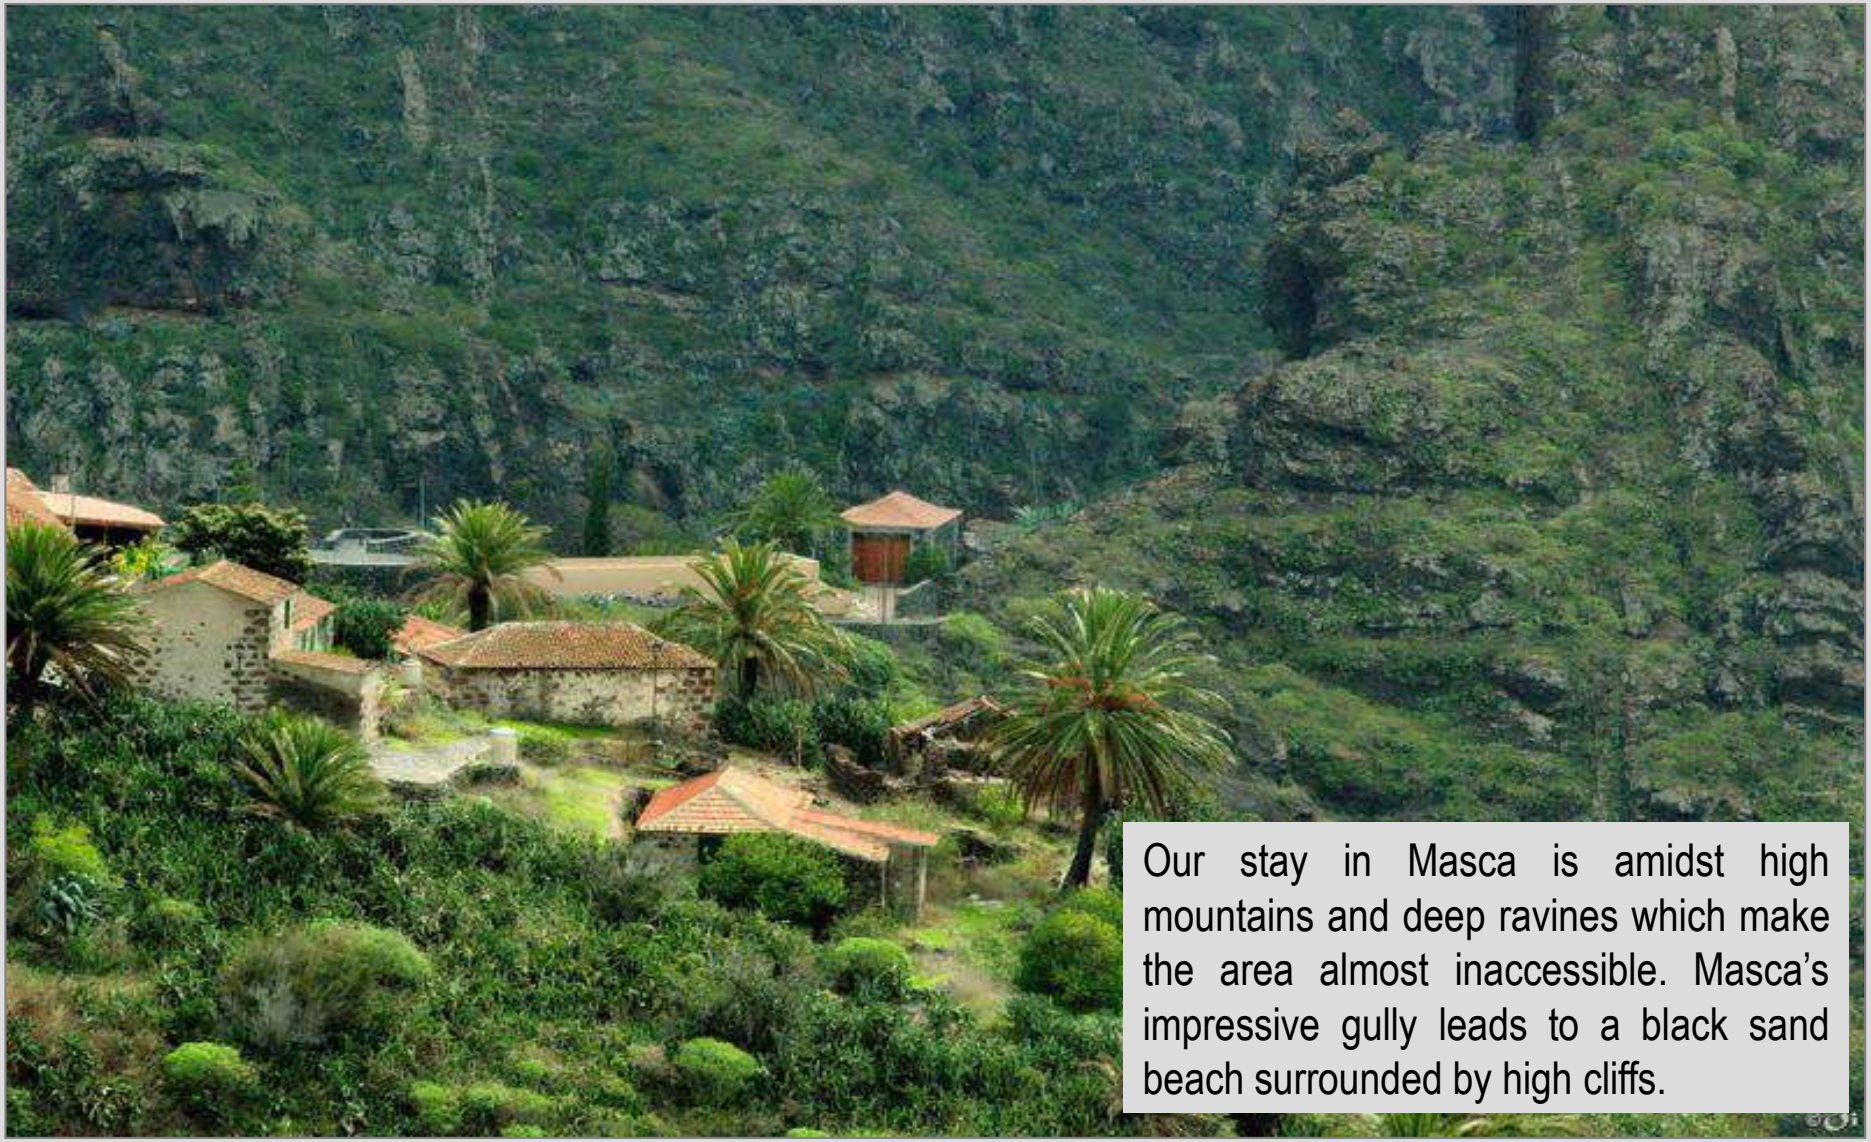
This mass of basalt towers powerfully over the immense Atlantic ocean, braving the sea and giving the landscape a truly unusual perspective.

MASCA Village



We make our way up through the countryside to 'MASCA', a little hamlet of incomparable beauty that nestles in the high mountains. Here we may observe an exquisite example of typical primitive Canarian rural architecture.

MASCA Village



Our stay in Masca is amidst high mountains and deep ravines which make the area almost inaccessible. Masca's impressive gully leads to a black sand beach surrounded by high cliffs.

GARACHICO Village

We drive down through the Palmar Valley to the picturesque town *of 'GARACHICO', a lovely coastal village founded at the time of the Spanish conquest of the Island.

Its name combines the ancient Guanche root ‘igara’= Island- with the Spanish adjective ‘chico’ = small, refering to the rock which can be seen just off the coast and which has become a symbol of the town.

GARACHICO Village

The history of this small village was marked by the eruption in the spring of 1706, when the lava flows destroyed it's natural port and brought it's flourishing commerce to an end.

GARACHICO Village

The harbour of Garachico was the most important port in Tenerife during the 16th century. At that time the town suffered several natural disasters. The volcanic landslides in 1645, killed over one hundred people, and in the eruption of 1706 lava rivers reached the harbour which became unsuitable for commercial shipping.

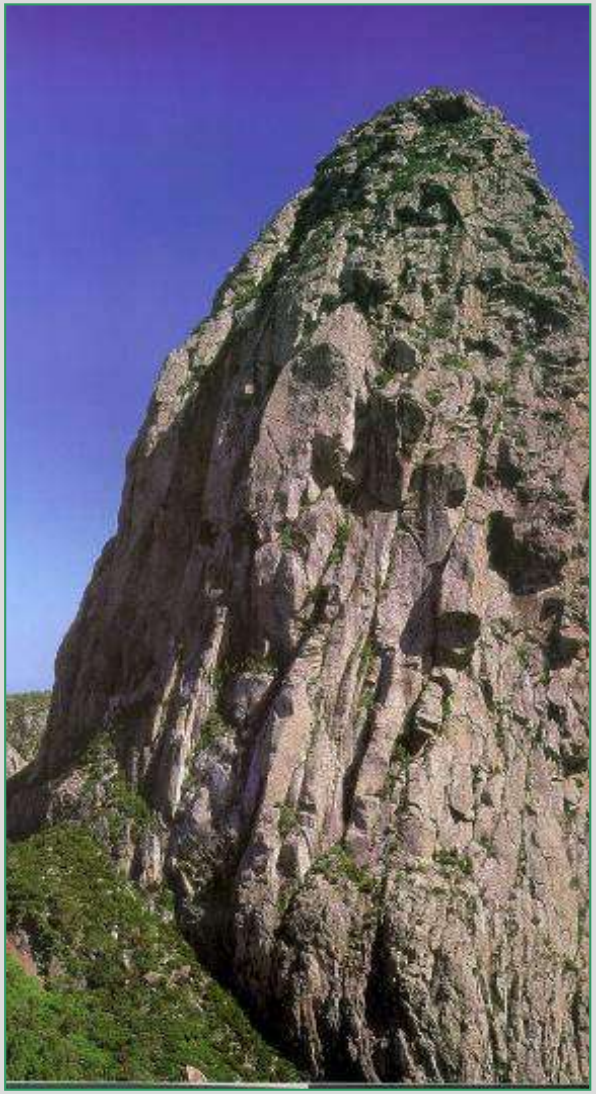
LA GOMERA ISLAND

LA GOMERA ISLAND



Thanks to the wonderful variety of scenery and tracks throughout the forests, mountains and volcanic areas of the Island there are countless possibilities in setting the route for a most exciting day.

The idea is to give the participants the opportunity to explore a very interesting and scenic area in a different way.

The itinerary has been designed and will take us through a magnificent natural environment.

LA GOMERA ISLAND

We arrive at the Island's capital SAN SEBASTIAN, from where we start the tour of the Island allowing us to see the rich vegetation and clean unspoilt countryside. GOMERA Island still maintains the distinctive flavour of the Canaries. The Island life in this remote area is rooted in the towns and villages scattered in the valleys which sweep down to the sea. The Island's GARAJONAY NATIONAL PARK is a paradise for nature lovers.

LA GOMERA ISLAND

On arriving back at San Sebastian we enjoy some free time to visit the places of interests, the 15th Century Tower, the Church with its fine portico of red lava and the 'Casa de Colon' the house where Columbus stayed.

GOMERA was the last port of call for Columbus on his way to discover the new world in 1492.

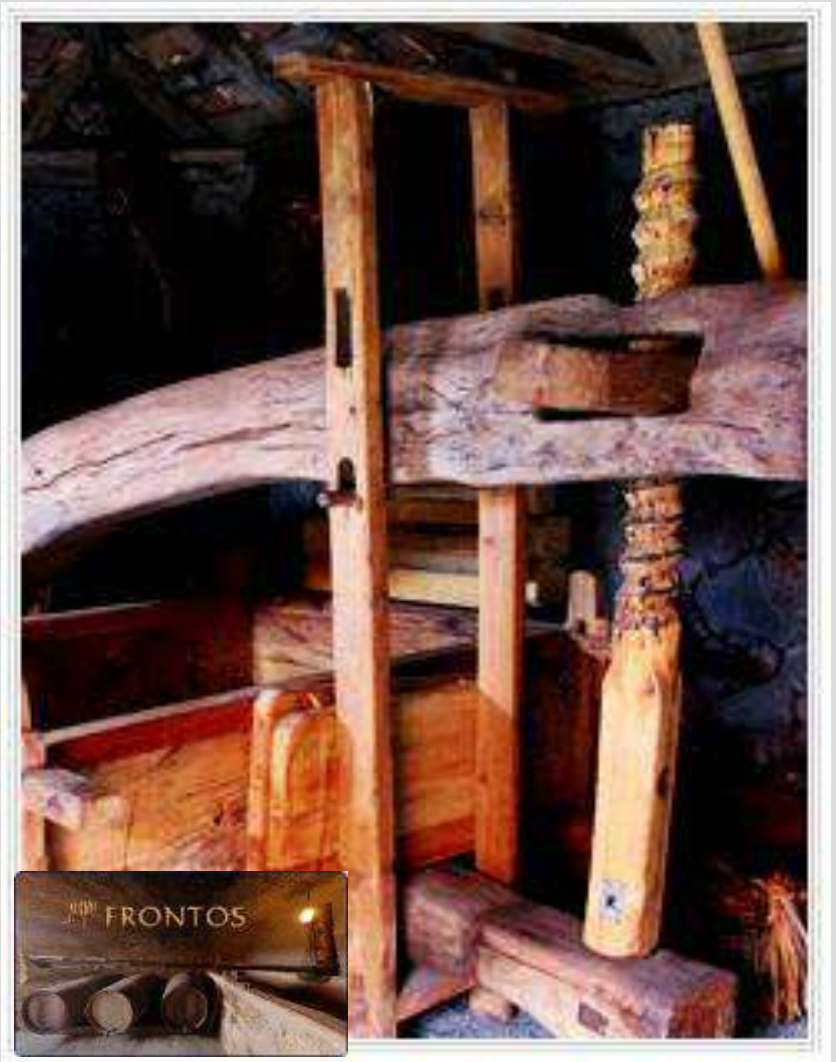
LA GOMERA ISLAND

Lunch will be served at the Parador Restaurant.

An amazing location overlooking the capital of the island.

Wine Tour

We will start at FRONTOS VINEYARD. Located in 'Granadilla de Abona', the FRONTOS Vineyard is a display of the wine culture in Tenerife. It is located in a rural property of 540,000 square meters and its facilities are the result of the conversion of an old family agricultural plantation that now combines traditional methods with modern wine producing technologies.



Wine Tour

We continue to MONJE WINE CELLAR, its vineyard stands some 500 meters above sea level in El Sauzal, on stony yet rich volcanic soil that time has helped to fashion. The steep terrain makes mechanised cultivation unfeasible and it is man's hand that tends the vines. The sun that beats down from the early hours of the morning together with the soft sea breeze that blows add up to a very special microcilmate for vine-growing.
Here we will taste the wines made with the traditional grape varieties, mostly red wines with an original personality.

Wine Tour

We reach PUERTO DE LA CRUZ village, Where the lunch will be served in a typical canarian house.
This is the main tourist centre of the north of the Island, situated on the coast of the Orotava valley, at the foot of Mount Teide. It enjoys a mild climate throughout the year. It was the pioneer of the tourist industry, and the oldest holiday resort in the Canary Islands, being declared "of Tourist Interest" in 1955.
