TOP EXPERIENCES!

2022 - 2024

Panama's diverse ecosystems are reflected in its astonishing terrestrial and marine biodiversity. The biomes found in Panama include tropical lowland humid forests, tropical mountain forests, tropical dry forests, freshwater wetlands, mangroves, coral reefs, and tropical islands. The importance of Panama in the region is even greater when considering its connection with the highly diverse tropical areas in North and South America.

Panama is a hotbed of biodiversity; its tropical habitats are home to some of the most diverse and exotic species of plants and animals on Earth. Covering almost half the country's land surface are immense tracks of rainforests, mangrove wetlands, and mountain cloud forests. And one of the largest coral reefs on the Pacific coast of the Americas.

When Panama emerged from the bottom of the sea, it united the Americas, and the Great Biotic Interchange occurred. At the turn of the 20 century man separated them again, to connect the world.

Amazing Adventure

From
USD $400.00

Panama offer you professional world-class offshore, inshore and estuaries (river) fishing. Sport Fishing enthusiasts enjoy some of the world's most consistent action around renowned seamounts of Hannibal Bank. The waters around islands such as Coiba, Jicaron, Montuosa, Secas and Las Perlas are well known for action from wahoo, trevallies, snappers, mahi mahi and many more. Fishing along the country's coastline offers action from riverine estuaries to blue water offshore. Many areas offer pelagics surprisingly close to shore like Pedasi for example.

RIVER & INSHORE
SPORT FISHING

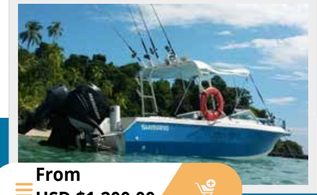

If you desire a quieter, more relaxing fishing experience, the Gulf of Montijo (Mutis) is where to go. With more than 89 thousand hectares of rivers and mangrove forests this region boasts end-less spots and great abundance of fish, you always has a Gatun Lake as another option, what could be more exciting than fishing on the banks of the Panama Canal.

OFFSHORE
SPORTFISHING

The legends say that Panama means, in the indigenous language, abundance of butterflies, others say that it is abundant fish.

if you want big pelagic or yellowfin tuna I would say that Coiba (Banco Hannibal) and Bahia Piñas, if you are looking for offshore action with wahoo, mahi mahi and big snapper or inshore with rooster fish, it would take you to Pedasí and again to Coiba and no doubt many spots near the Bay of Panama (Pearl Islands). There may well be other remote, tropical areas that provide a better blend of inshore and offshore fishing than Coiba National Park including Hannibal Bank, large populations and wide variety of fish make fishing the reefs and banks in and near a year round activity.

PANAMA FISHING FROM COAST TO COAST

The yellowfin tunas visit us when cold currents reach our coasts, the coveted wahoo likes it when the rains are strongest between August and December.
Other sports fishes such as the snapper, rooster fish, amberjack and grouper, with luck we will be able to fish almost all year round.
Coiba and Hannibal Bank has so many IGFA World Records

PANAMA
WHALE WATCHING
JUL - OCT

Humpback whales migrate from their feeding grounds in Antarctic waters to the Pacific Coast of Panama, arriving in July. In the warm, safe waters of Panama, they breed and give birth. In Oc-tober, the whales start the 8000 km journey back the Antarctica waters.

Panama waters are ideal for humpback whales to breed and give birth because of its warm waters without predators.
Calves are born with very little body fat since the poles water is extremely cold for them. The babies can consume as much as 100 liters of milk a day, while the mothers sing lovely lullabies to them.
The Coiba, Cebaco, Iguana, Taboga Islands, the archipelago Las Perlas and Chiriqui Gulf are preferred by tourists, scientists and locals to enjoy the migration of the whales and their calves.

What precautions should be taken to visit them?

During the breeding season of the humpback whale, many tourists and scientists arrive in Panama to enjoy the moment.

Panama is a country that promotes the creation of whale sanctuaries and in which respect for marine species, and especially those endangered, is highly priority.

Humpback whales are very easy to see during the breeding season as they stay at the surface for prolonged periods of time. To ensure that the whales are not disturbed by whale tourism visitors should follow the following basic rules:

- Avoid getting too close to a female with breeding, nobody knows what a mother will do to protect her calf. Keep quiet at all times.
- Mantain to 300 meters of distance from the whale, and reduce the speed or even stop because the noise disturbs them.
- Never go 200 meters close to them.
- The safest way to approach them is to sail parallel to the whales Never approach them head on or from the rear.
- Never try to swim or dive close to them.
- Do not spend more than 30 minutes with adult whale(s) and less than 15 minutes with a mother and calf.
- No more than two boats are allowed to view adult whales and only one boat at the time is allowed near a mother and calf pair.

Over time the rise of the isthmus, affected the biodiversity of the world enabling animals to migrate from north to south, changing the weather patterns across the world, even in Europe. The development of the isthmus created the Gulf Stream which gives definition to rainfall amounts, temperatures, tides, and climates for the region.

GULF OF MONTIJO

The San Pedro and San Pablo rivers, both located in the Province of Veraguas, unite their waters to create one of the most complete ecosystems of Panama: the Gulf of Montijo Wetlands. More than 11% of the mangrove forest of Panama are found here.

These rivers along with numerous tributaries, and coastal wetlands (RAMSAR Site) create the ideal habitat for numerous marine species of importance for the fishing, an essential activity for the people of the Gulf of Montijo.

These lands, covering 80,765 hectares of marshes, marine areas, secondary forests, and grasslands, also provide vital nesting areas for species of seabirds and migratory birds.

Visit these wetlands that have been declared a RAMSAR SITE and enjoy a different and exotic landscape.

BLACK SHELL TOUR

Escape the chaos of daily life and explore a wild, uninhabited island searching for mangrove treasures.

The black shell is a species of mollusk that lives in the mud, between the roots of the mangrove, and has an essential role in the ecosystem, as it is a key part of the food chain and also, being a filter, influences the health of the coastal ecosystem.

Dozens of families depend directly on the collection and commerce of this resource. The overexploitation has reduced the population, now it has become a sustainable tourist resource, replacing the extractive activity.

Our knowledgeable guides travel with you on and off the boat to show you the best shelling spots. Black Shell tours are all about walking. Expect to walk on uneven sandy ground, around mangrove forests, and through the mud for the duration of the tour. You will be expected to walk a distance of at least 200 meters in such conditions.

Of course, after collecting the black shells, people from the nearby community will prepare a delicious dish for us.

- Diving & Snorkel
- Kayak & SUP Tours
- Trekking
- Horse Back Riding
- Whale Watching
- Sport Fishing
- Beach Time

Cebaco is an elongated island (25 km long), with miles of pristine and very diverse beaches . The beaches on the north coast, which is what is facing the Gulf of Montijo, have coarse sand, with gray stones, shells and rocky shores. The sound of the waves as they returned exudes an indescribable noise of rolling stones. The dark sand makes a dramatic contrast with the blue sea and the rocky outcroppings provide excellent tide pooling at low tide.
Playa Grande, on the southern coast, is fine-grained white sand and crystal blue waters. Towards the south, you find Tintorera, where you can find the best coral reefs of the island. This region is ideal for diving and snorkeling activities.
In addtion, he coasts of Cebaco are part of the marine corridor of humpback whales and every year the island is visited by these majestic giants, with good spots for sport fishing.

COIBA

From Hell to Paradise

For almost 100 years, Coíba was inhabited only by criminals and political prisoners. Now it's one of the most biodiverse regions on the planet.

Established in 1919, the island was punishment for Panama's most dangerous criminals or for those who angered the wrong people. Unlike a penitentiary in which criminals are housed within fortress like walls, on the island of Coíba, most prisoners were scattered throughout the island in 30 makeshift camps, creating shelters from natural surroundings.

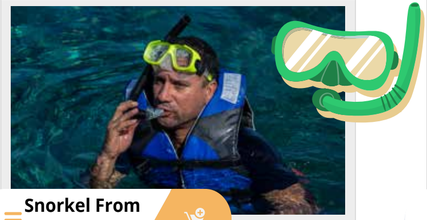

Prisoners who tried to escape were deterred by the sharks and crocodiles that inhabited the is-land's waters.

After Panama's military dictatorship ended, the prison began closing in 1990 and the last convict was released from the prison in 2005, in the same year Coiba National Park was declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site due to its evolutionary significance and the inhabitance of at-risk species on the islands.

- Is home of 760 species of fish, 33 shark species, and 20 species of whales and dolphins. Endan-gered, vulnerable, and near threatened species in the park include loggerhead, leatherback, hawksbill and olive Ridley turtles, tiger sharks and crested eagles.
- Because it was secluded as a prison, Coiba Island remained virtually untouched and undevel-oped, allowing endemic species to evolve on the island, including the Coiba Island howler and Coiba Island agouti. Eighty percent of the forest is primary, or old-growth.
- Coiba Island is surrounded by one of the largest coral reefs on Americas' Pacific coast. The reefs act as refuge for species escaping the effects of El Niño.

Coiba is a Living Laboratory, it has the highest rate of endemism of any equivalent region in the world, with over 1,700 hectares of living coral reefs in the National Park. The water is filled with big fish "Very big fish", encounters are frequent. Humpback, Sperm and Pilot whales migrate through the park.

MARIATO (SunSet Coast)

The west coast of the Azuero Peninsula, "The Sunset Coast" is without a doubt the best eco-destination in the area. Mariato has at least 27 beaches, most of them deserted large areas of white and golden sand, disrupted by scenic rocky points, mangrove and river estuaries. The coast is dotted with small islands as well, providing beautiful landscapes and stunning sunsets. Some of the better known beaches are La Reina, Palo Seco, Malena, Torio, Los Duartes, Morrillo, Mata Oscura, La Playita, La Albina and Restingue.
Inland, there are the almost impenetrable forests of the Cerro Hoya National Park, still wild, dozens of rivers, hundreds of waterfalls, full of endemic species, unique in the world.
During your visit you can stay in small hotels with sea views or nestled in the jungle and dine at restaurants that will let you taste their delicious seafood recipes.

Surf

The "Sunset Coast" offers an abundance of beautiful beaches with surf breaks for every level of surfer.
The most popular spots are Playa Reina for medium to advanced surfers, Playa Torio for beginners, and Playa Morrillo with big powerful beach break surf for experts.

PEDASI PARADISE
THE TUNA COAST

Often called the Tuna Coast, the waters around Pedasi is one of the best places in the world for fishing. Pelagic game fish are abundant due a sharp continental shelf drop relatively close to shore, with year-round catch including; amberjack, Pacific sailfish, cubera snapper, roosterfish, grouper, white dorado (commonly called mahi-mahi, or dolphinfish), both bigeye tuna and yellowfin tuna and wahoo are found seasonally, November through April.

The Azuero Peninsula sits just north of central Panama along the country's Pacific coastline. The waters off the coast are filled with big fish and offer up spectacular sport fishing opportunities. Pedasi is all about fishing. There are leisure and professional fishing. There is also two offshore fishing tournament. We trolling, jigging and spearfishing, just book with us and we take you to the best fishing spots.

Pedasí and its surroundings are an incredible place located in the south of the Peninsula of Azue-ro, Province of Los Santos. Cradle of culture and national folklore. It is surrounded by lovely nature, especially its beaches, fields, and mountains. Its inhabitants are people without compari-son, full of smiles and a noble soul.

You can walk freely through the village and its beaches, cycling. For those who love beach activities surfing, snorkeling, scuba diving, SUP are just about as many that can be practiced.
