São Paulo

The largest city is the right destination for those looking for shopping, varied cuisine, cultural, sports and corporate options - it is estimated that every six minutes is a different event in the state capital. São Paulo, with almost 12 million inhabitants, was influenced by many people throughout its history, mainly Italian, Arabic and Japanese. As a result, it became one of the most racially mixed and effervescent cities in the world.

Despite the reputation of being a gray city, São Paulo has many hidden colors between the skyscrapers and its architecture reveals the influence of various cultures. The local cuisine is another highlight: you can taste dishes from various countries and renowned chefs. If you prefer, watch the various shows in dozens of theaters. Add to that the hustle and music in ballads and venues.
