MARRAKECH

Koutoubia Mosque

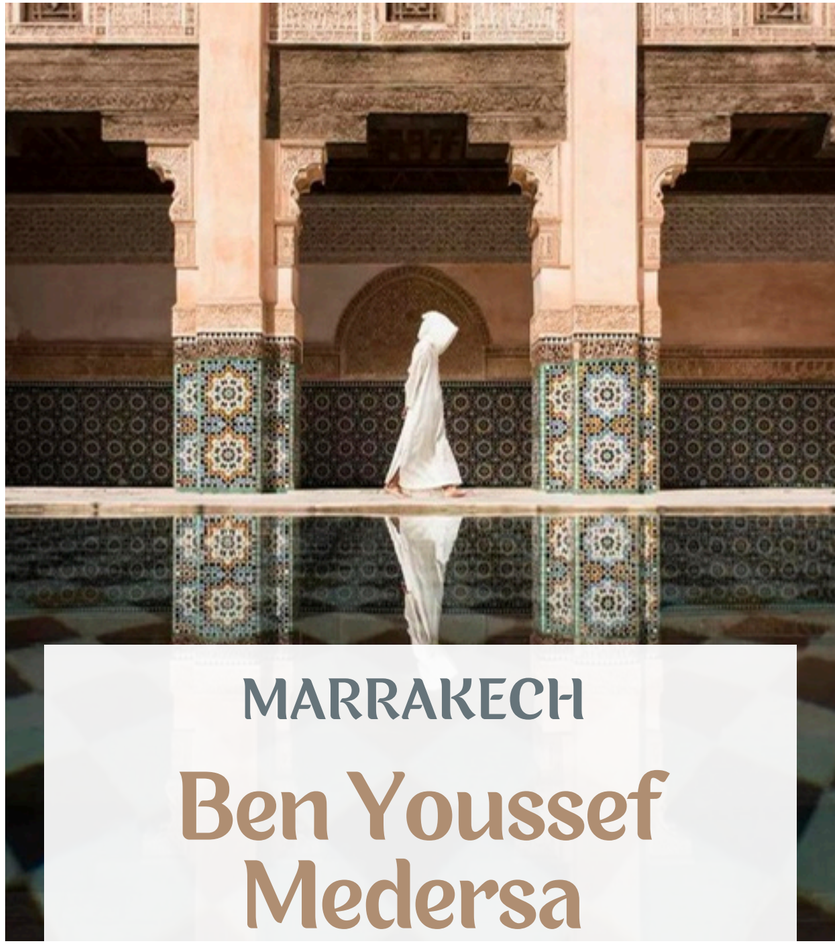

The largest mosque in Marrakech, its minaret is also the tallest structure within the walls of the old city, the Ochre City. Built in 1152, the Koutoubia Minaret takes inspiration from the Hassan Tower in Rabat, which was never completed.

MARRAKECH

El Badí Palace

It is an architectural complex built in Marrakech at the end of the 16th century by the Saadian Sultan Ahmed al-Mansour ad-Dahbi to celebrate the victory over the Portuguese army in 1578. Today, all that remains is an immense esplanade dotted with gardens, planted with orange trees, and surrounded by high walls.

MARRAKECH

Ben Youssef Medersa

It is an architectural gem dating back to the 14th century, known for its magnificent design and historical significance as an educational institution. The Ben Youssef Medersa is an impressive example of Islamic architecture, with a decorative mihrab and a wooden minbar.
