Indonesia

The more than 300 ethnic groups leaving in Indonesia have inspired the national motto of “Unity in Diversity”. Bali is rightfully famous for its culture, people and landscapes. The Island enchants with its dramatic dances, colorful ceremonies, artifacts and architecture. Sumatra preservers some of the most astonishing tropical wilderness, mountains, lakes, sanctuaries for orangutans and a string of coral islands.

Jawa, the most populous island, with its bustling cities and the historical ones. Landmarks witnessing the Hindu and Buddhist roots of the region, Borobudur and Prambanan, now UNESCO world sites stand majestic in the tropical landscape.

Sulawesi, home to the Toraja and ethnic groups with peculiar funerary rituals and the legendary islands of Moluccas, kingdom of the spices.

Nusa Tenggara with its famous beaches and atolls, crossed by the Wallace line parting two dramatically opposite climates and landscapes, hot and tropical and hot and arid.

Papua with its immense forests, high peaks and tribal people still hunting and gathering.

Malaysia

Malaysia is one of the economic engines of South East Asia, prospering at a fast pace and rapidly gaining an international reputation as one of the desirable destinations of the region.

A vast array of impressive infrastructures, a well-educated and largely English speaking population make the country an easy destination to visit.

Home to one of the oldest rain forest in the world, tall mountains and long rivers it contains an impressive range of biodiversity, and some of the most tradition bound tribal populations. Malaysia is a beacon for nature lovers.

Immersed in warm tropical sun are its historical cities, cool hill resorts and tropical islands. The sprawling and modern capital city of Kuala Lumpur offers all kind of entertainment, high-end accommodation and high-tech convention centers for the most demanding MICE organizers, rivaling Singapore at attractive low cost.

An eclectic cultural mix of Chinese, Indians, Malays and various minorities from the region render a visit to Malaysia a truly Asian experience.

Myanmar

Home to 135 different ethnic groups, Myanmar is a charming land of gentle hills, rugged Himalayan Mountains, plains and beaches. Its soil is rich in jade and gems, oil, natural gas and other mineral resources.

The country offers some breath- taking sights, warm and friendly people, hospitality and mysterious pagodas.

Most popular destinations within this new emerging tourist destination are the capital Yangon, Mandalay in the north with the ancient site of Bagan.

Singapore

This former British trading colony is now an international financial and high-tech hub, surprisingly convivial and with much to offer: world-class nature parks and museums, an exciting Asiatic cultural blend, unique cuisine, sparkling high-rises and diverting ethnic enclaves.

Singapore is both an island and a country, but perhaps its best description is that of city-state. Its combination of Western-style development and Eastern-style calm seems to present the best of both hemispheres: It is a modern metropolis where you feel safe walking on the street and it is an Asian business centre that is a model of efficiency.

Singapore is also a multicultural city, and close to one-quarter of its population are expatriates or foreign workers from all over the world.
