DAY 1
ARRIVAL AT SOFIA AIRPORT

About Sofia

Bulgaria joins the EU in 2007 which makes the country one of the last members of the Union. The country still has kept a low profile on the tourist map of Europe and therefore one of the best preserved hidden corners of Eastern Europe. The capital city Sofia has a beautiful city centre whose many late 19th and early 20th century buildings have recently been restored with the help of EC projects. In some areas this Neo-Classical and Secession architecture sits side by side with the monolithic constructions from the Communist period. There are also many glossy new buildings, particularly office centres, and some have made real efforts to integrate their modern brass and glass outlook with the original facades of the buildings. The municipality has been busy over the past few years and has upgraded the old roads and revived most of the parks and gardens.

Outside of the centre most of the city's 1.5 million inhabitants live in concrete socialist housing complexes but beyond these, the city is surrounded on all sides by wonderful mountain ranges. The wooded mass of granite, called Mount Vitosha, whose foothills begin some 10 km from the city centre, is very much part of the capital and is the source of its pure water and fresh breezes. Locals go there to picnic, gather wild herbs and berries, and the ascent of its highest peak has become a traditional annual stamina test for hikers and mountain bikers. Most of Sofia sights are to be found inside the central area, luckily, within easy walking distance. One can follow either sides of the Yellow cobbled road, visit public buildings, squares, churches, archeological sites dating as far back as 7000 years ago.
